Teaching &amp; Learning Strategies:	A constructivist approach will be taken whereby the active learner makes judgements about when and how to modify their knowledge. • Learning environment (lectures) – this time will be spent prompting learning of particular knowledge by students • Supervision Sessions – students engage with a supervisor who gives 'light-touch' guidance to the students over the full course of the project. The teaching & learning strategy is thus very practical and applied in nature including supervision support for the learners.
Module Aim:	The main aim of this project is to enable the student to understand the research process and produce a dissertation thesis. The project will help the student to identify a research problem and carry out an independent research project within the field of media/public relations.
Learning Outcomes
On successful completion of this module the learner should be able to:
LO1	Undertake primary and secondary research on a topic involving multiple disciplines within the course
LO2	Analyse and present the findings of their research
LO3	Critique recommendations on the basis of their analysis
LO4	Demonstrate research and academic writing skills

Module Content & Assessment
Indicative Content
Overview

Students will receive a 12 contact hours in Research Methodology. These classes cover: Research process, defining the problem and research objectives; developing a research plan; implementing the research plan, writing a literature review, preparing a research methodology, interpreting and reporting the findings, secondary research – development and analysis, primary research. These classes provide the students with the research skills to use in addition to the skills and knowledge gained from their other subjects. The students will be given a log-book at the beginning of the academic year containing precise details on the requirements for the dissertation. Each student will be allocated a project supervisor with whom they will agree the research topic. A timetable of weekly meetings will be developed at which progress or problems will be discussed and dates for deliverables agreed. Deliverables as follows:-

- Project requirements explained
- request for project proposals
- Project proposal discussed with student
- Research methodology
- Review of secondary research
- Implementation of primary research plan
- Student submits final project
