Teaching & Learning Strategies:	Blended and E-Learning /Lectures /seminars/gallery/museum visits, student presentations and class based learning research activities. Blended learning strategies will entail the use of electronic platforms such as Blackboard to provide on- line learning materials and interactive question and answer sessions. Lectures will outline key issues, artists, art works etc. using audio visual and interactive methods as appropriate. Class discussions/presentations will encourage students to further develop their communication skills. Gallery Visits will also include the international field trip. Student presentations will allow students to clarify in detail a topic that is both student and tutor selected. Finally in support of discussion students will be encouraged to reflect on set reading extracts for each class.
Module Aim:	This module seeks to introduce essential concepts and research practices related to the study of visual and material culture. It aims to focus upon questions related to culture and ideology, issues of subjectivity and identity formation and the nature of representation in our highly visual environment. An emphasis is placed on the individual development of each student as a self -directed learner where assessment is seen as a means of developing a sense of self reflectivity based on course content.
Learning Outcomes
On successful completion of this module the learner should be able to:
LO1	Demonstrate a good understanding of critical questions and challenges that apply to the fields of visual and material culture by being able to analyse a visual/mass media text.
LO2	Be able to identify and use a variety of research skills options including online research and visual research methodologies such as semiotics.
